

Shaldon is a small village in South Devon, England, on the bank of the River Teign, opposite Teignmouth. The village has been described as "a quaint English fishing village" and is a popular bathing place.

Shaldon is surrounded by countryside and hills. People can enjoy walking in the countryside or taking the ferry to Teignmouth. People can spend time at the local beach and enjoy a swim. They can visit the zoo or go for a picnic in the local parks.

Homeyards Botanical Gardens

"Shaldon Castle", a folly in Homeyards Botanical Gardens

On a hillside above the village are gardens consisting of an informal terraced arboretum with a level walk along the top providing views of the Teign estuary and the Jurassic Coast. A feature of the gardens is a folly known as Shaldon Castle.